perplexity

These are results for before Diana ate Daniel Bernstein,she told him how good is service was/but reminded him how he betrayed his own kind,the human race

Search instead for before Diana ate Daniel Bernatein,she told him how good is service was/but reminded him how he betrayed his own kind,the human race

The scene you're referencing is from the original V miniseries, specifically involving Daniel Bernstein and Diana, the Visitor commander. Daniel Bernstein is a human who collaborates extensively with the alien Visitors, betraying his own family and fellow humans in exchange for power and status among the invaders. His actions include turning in resistance members and helping the Visitors capture key figures, which leads to the suffering and deaths of many, including his own grandfather[1] [2].

Ultimately, Daniel's loyalty to the Visitors is repaid with betrayal. He is sentenced to death by the Visitors and is last seen being dragged away to be processed as food for them[3] [1]. The narrative and commentary on his character highlight that Daniel is viewed as a traitor to humanity, someone who turned against his own kind for personal gain. The story uses Daniel as an example of how easily some people can be swayed to betray their community, and how such betrayal is ultimately punished—even by those he sought to serve[1] [2].

While there is no direct transcript in the search results of Diana telling Daniel how good his service was before reminding him of his betrayal, the story arc makes it clear that Daniel's fate is a direct consequence of his actions against humanity, and his final moments are marked by the ultimate irony: after betraying his own species, he is consumed by the very aliens he aided[3] [1].

⁂

These are results for before Diana ate Daniel Bernstein,she told him how good is service was/but reminded him how he betrayed his own kind,the human race

Search instead for before Diana ate Daniel Bernatein,she told him how good is service was/but reminded him how he betrayed his own kind,the human race,so showed sadistic compassion towards him,fan fiction.

Certainly! Here's a short piece of fan fiction inspired by your prompt, set in the V universe and focusing on Diana and Daniel Bernstein:

Before Diana Ate Daniel Bernstein

The sterile chill of the Visitor mothership seeped into Daniel's bones as he stood before Diana. Her eyes, cold and reptilian beneath a veneer of beauty, watched him with a predatory patience. Two guards flanked her, their silence more terrifying than any threat.

Diana stepped forward, her heels clicking on the metallic floor. "You have served us well, Daniel," she purred, her voice smooth as silk. "Your loyalty was... impressive. You delivered your own people to us, even your own family. Few are so... dedicated."

Daniel's lips trembled. He tried to speak, to plead, but Diana raised a hand to silence him.

"But," she continued, her tone sharpening, "you must understand: betrayal is a habit, not a singular act. If you betray your own kind, why should we believe you would not betray us as well?"

He shook his head, desperate. "No, Diana, I—I did everything you asked. I'm not like them. I belong with you."

A smile curled on her lips, equal parts amusement and pity. "That's what makes you so fascinating, Daniel. You crave belonging so much, you'd sacrifice anything for it. Even your humanity." She leaned closer, her breath icy on his cheek. "But in the end, you are still human. And humans are... deliciously fragile."

For a moment, Diana's gaze softened. Was it compassion? Or simply the sadistic pleasure of watching him realize the depth of his mistake? She brushed a hand over his shoulder, almost tenderly.

"I suppose I should thank you," she whispered. "Without your help, our conquest would have been... less efficient. You have my gratitude, Daniel. And my pity."

He barely had time to process her words before the guards seized him. Diana watched as he was dragged away, her expression unreadable—a mask of sadistic compassion for a traitor who had nowhere left to belong.

If you'd like a longer story or a different tone, just let me know!

She hissed and licked,kissed him with her reptile tongue.

In the V universe, the Visitors are reptilian humanoids who wear a synthetic human-like skin and possess distinct reptilian traits, including the ability to unhinge their jaws, long reptilian teeth, and even a tongue akin to that of reptiles[4] [5]. While the original series and official canon depict their eating habits as carnivorous and sometimes brutal, there is no direct canonical scene describing Diana hissing, licking, or kissing Daniel Bernstein with her reptilian tongue before consuming him.

However, such a vivid and intimate reptilian gesture—hissing and licking or kissing with a reptile tongue—fits well within fan fiction interpretations and expansions of the V mythos, where Diana might show a sadistic form of "compassion" or dominance over a traitorous human like Daniel Bernstein before his demise. This kind of scene would emphasize her alien nature and cruelty, blending sensuality with menace, which aligns with her character's portrayal as both seductive and ruthless.

Therefore, while the canonical V series confirms the reptilian nature of Diana and the Visitors, the specific act of hissing and licking or kissing Daniel with her reptilian tongue is a creative detail typical of fan fiction rather than official material[4] [5] [6].

⁂

1. https://timewarriors.co.uk/2024/10/07/forgotten-villains-v-the-mini-series-daniel-bernstein/
2. https://www.thespoilist.com/tv-revisited-v-the-original-miniseries-part-two/
3. https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=hJUmCd5Cmbg
4. https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/V_(1983_miniseries)
5. https://v.fandom.com/wiki/The_Visitors
6. http://forum.80stv.co.uk/cgi-bin/yabb2/YaBB.pl?num=1714168562